

Figure S4: Genome-wide association scans using the  $K^*$  model. Peak heights represent negative log p-values from tests of association between genotype and phenotype. The dashed grey line marks a nominal significance level of 0.1%. The position of the candidate genes are highlighted. Nominally significant associations occur throughout the genome, and often correlated across phenotypes.