

1. Highly heterozygous individuals, which could not be unambiguously assigned as separate "types" are not included in the genotype frequency counts. Thus in some populations, "genotype frequencies" do not sum to the total number of plants sampled.