

Supporting information to manuscript: Do Seabirds Differ from Other Migrants in their Travel Arrangements? On Route Strategies of Cory's Shearwater during its Trans-Equatorial Journey by Maria P. Dias, José P. Granadeiro & Paulo Catry

Figure S1. Example of a daily activity pattern of a Cory's shearwater during its outward migration. Dashed vertical lines represent sunset and sunrise. Horizontal bars represent foraging bouts (dark grey) and flight bouts (light grey).

