Mathematical validation of clustering gene sets by hotspot susceptibility. A) A k-means approach to clustering gene sets suggest that two clusters is ideal. B) One principal component accounts for a majority of the trend of hotspot susceptibility. C) Clusters along this principal component confirm same patterns of vulnerable (blue) and resistant (red) gene sets.