A and B are graphs showing the relationship between group size and link fraction. The x-axis represents group size on a logarithmic scale, while the y-axis represents link fraction. Each graph contains multiple lines of different colors, each representing a different condition or parameter. The legends for A and B are not visible in the image.