Accuracy and reaction times on the emotion recognition and control test.

Group differences in accuracy and reaction times were evident on the emotion recognition task, indicating higher accuracy and lower reaction times in TC, compared to ASD. No such effects were revealed for the control task.