S4 Fig: Longitudinal and transversal cryo-sections of a barley seed at the third day of germination. Main seed organs and tissues are indicated; the transversal section was at half of the total seed length in all samples, the longitudinal section in the middle of the seed through the embryo axis (black lines).