Figure S1. The observed and random distribution of CpG methylation in different sequencing depths. The observed methylation level distribution is a bimodal distribution no matter of the sequencing depth while the random distribution is unimodal as we assume the methylation frequency obeys a binomial distribution (Eq 3). The final random distribution is the combination of the random distribution of all sequencing depth (Fig 1A).