

S3 Fig. Importance of climatic variables according to a 'random forest' analysis. Variable importance is given as the percental increase of the mean standard error under random permutation of the respective variables. See methods for the definition of seasons.